

Seamless Self-Scheduling with CalendarAnything

Bring the power of CalendarAnything and scheduling together with Availability Scheduling. Availability Scheduling within CalendarAnything integrates self-scheduling capabilities to optimize scheduling processes. Enable resources to set their own availability to self-schedule bookings on a website or digital experience, with captured information available in Salesforce for CalendarAnything visualization or Salesforce reporting.

How it works

Resource availability setup

Resources can set their own availability, including vacations and lunch breaks.

Public calendar display

The availability calendar is presented on your website or digital experience, showcasing available time slots.

Effortless self-scheduling

Your audience can easily book time slots with their preferred resource at a preferred location.

Lead generation

Capture lead information when your audience books time slots automatically in Salesforce, streamlining reporting and marketing activities.

Seamless integration and collaboration

Availability Scheduling seamlessly integrates with other CalendarAnything features, allowing you to overlay multiple calendars in one place.

Industries benefiting from Availability Scheduling

Any business on the Salesforce platform that has a need for self-scheduling can benefit, including Real Estate, Healthcare, Professional Services, Education, and more.
