Return to Work Safely With SurfaceTrends™

As businesses of all industries plan to return to work safely, an Infection Control Plan (ICP) is becoming recommended, and in some states required per OSHA. ICP's reveal the cleanliness of high-touch surfaces while providing a plan and recommendations for antimicrobial solutions to reduce the number of bacteria and viruses found on the surfaces. ICPs should be the first thing businesses do before allowing employees and guests to return to buildings as it provides a safer environment for them. ICP's also need to provide owners with the validity that the disinfecting procedures followed are actually reducing bacteria and viruses found on surfaces. SurfaceTrends™ provides analytical data that validates janitorial cleaning and additional disinfecting protocols can help verify what your facility is doing is working.

SurfaceTrends™ provides real-time environmental surface testing results for organizations returning to work. Leveraging data via 3M's™ ATP tester, SurfaceTrends™ offers you a proactive approach to managing your facilities' moderate, and high touch points or surfaces. Infection Control Plans (ICPs) are increasingly becoming required by OSHA in certain states and providing real-time analytic data validating janitorial cleaning and disinfecting protocols can help verify what your facility is doing is working.
